Infrared database software is a must for managing images and data and efficiently generating reports, and Aspect is that program.

Our company has utilized several reporting software programs since 2004, only to see them become obsolete to Microsoft updates. In fact, we run old Windows versions on dedicated computers to just to retain their viability for occasional use.

Aspect has cleverly looked into Microsoft's future and designed a comprehensive database and report generation program that is easy to use and delivers professional standards compliant reports that have a clean modern look in a fraction of the time required by any other software offering we are aware of. And this software will never get hampered by updates.

Technical support is on-point and updates keep coming ...without asking.

Well done EXSERO Software. And good luck to the launch of Aspect. Based on our experience, you should do well.
